GST WILL LEAD TO HIGHER GROWTH

Sushma Ramachandran

The decks have been cleared for the introduction of the path-breaking Goods and Services Tax (GST) in the country next July with the Parliament approving four supplementary GST legislations. These are the Central GST (CGST), Integrated GST (IGST), Union Territory GST (UTGST) and the Compensation Law bills. The impressive acronyms for these bills indicate that the long awaited new tax is being introduced in a way that was not originally planned. Instead of a single level tax, it will be in the form of several levies including an inter state tax and a state level tax. Initially it was envisaged as a single point tax replacing the multiplicity of levies existing currently. Even so, it means that the numerous layers of taxation currently being imposed will be replaced by only a few taxes.

The main Goods and Services Tax (GST) Act was approved by Parliament last year. This clearance came 15 years after the idea was first mooted and a decade after negotiations began. First, the talks were held between states as the central government agreeing to compensate states for revenues expected to be lost owing to the new tax. Next came the equally difficult part of negotiating had to seriously consider the Opposition's amendments to the bill because without its support, it would not have been possible to clear it in the Rajya Sabha. This was just the beginning of the process as the GST Bill is a constitutional amendment and needs ratification by a two thirds majority in at least half of the state assemblies. Even this difficult task was achieved within 23 days as against the target of 30 days after the bill was approved by Parliament.

What is this pathbreaking reform that is being described as a gamechanger for the Indian economy? Basically it means that most existing taxes will be done away with and replaced by a single point levy. It removes a huge plethora of bureaucratic paperwork. It is a single tax at the final point of consumption. It does away with the multiplicity of taxes at every level of the supply chain from the manufacturing to the sale point.

The taxes that GST will replace are the central excise duty, additional duties of customs, commonly known as CVD, special additional duty of customs (SAD) and service tax which are currently levied and collected by the central government. It will also replace certain taxes levied by states such as state VAT (value added tax), central sales tax, entertainment and amusement tax (except when levied by the local bodies) and taxes on lotteries, betting and gambling.

It will also replace the onerous octroi that makes trucks wait for hours on end while moving from one state to another. Thus in effect, it makes India a large single market. Comparisons are being drawn with the European Union since in the Indian federal structure, states have been levying their own taxes which are numerous. This has pushed up the level of taxation on the citizens to a very high level. By the empowered group of finance ministers tried to bring about a compromise formula to satisfy all stakeholders. This was achieved not just by hard bargaining but by between political parties. When it came to actually passing the bill, a regime change had taken place and the NDA had formed the government. The NDA government

PREPARING FOR THE NEET

Rruchi Shrimalli

NEET exam is the single most important pre-medical exam in India. All the states participating in NEET 2017 will fill 15% of their MBBS and BDS seats through the centralized all-India counselling and 85% of seats through state counselling.

Students of Jammu & Kashmir (J&K), Andhra Pradesh (AP) and Telangana can appear for the exam only for the admission to the Armed Forces Medical College (AFMC), Pune. Other institutes and universities that screen students for their MBBS and BDS courses through the NEET 2017 include Delhi University, Banaras Hindu University (BHU), and Jamia Hamdard University.

Eligibility Criteria for NEET 2017

Indian citizens or Overseas Citizen of India (OCI) are eligible to apply for the NEET 2017 exam if:

- They have cleared or appeared for the 10+2 exam or its equivalent examination with Physics, Chemistry, Biology or Biotechnology, and English.
- General category students need to score at least 50% marks in Class 12 board exams. PH category (amongst General) students need 45% marks while SC, ST and OBC students need to score 40% marks in the qualifying exam.

- Students need to be at least 17 years old on December 31, 2017 to be able to appear residency proof of the state.

All candidates need Aadhaar card to apply for the NEET 2017 exam. However, an exception has been made for the students of J&K, Assam and Meghalaya.

The age limit for the National Eligibility Cum Entrance Test (NEET) or All India Pre Medical

The apex court will give final decision on the age limits in the NEET exam later.

Earlier, the CBSE had declared that medical aspirants can appear for the NEET exam for a maximum of three times. However, later they clarified that NEET attempts before 2017 will not be taken into consideration in this case. NEET 2017 will be considered the first attempt for all medical aspirants appearing for the exam this year.

If you want to be a doctor, 2017 is the ideal year for you to apply for the exam.

NEET 2017 exam date has been announced as May 7, 2017.

You need to apply online on the official NEET website, and fill in personal and academic details as instructed, and tell about the exam centre choices.

You will also need a valid email ID and password, and scanned copy of a recent photograph while applying the NEET exam too.

Students can pay the NEET 2017 application fee online too – through net banking, debit card, credit card, or e-wallet. The application fee for General category or OBC category students is for the NEET 2017 exam. There is no upper age limit this year but students will have to fulfill the age limits specified by the institutes or universities in which they seek admission.

For the 85% state-quota seats:

- Students should have a valid domicile of the state.
- They should also have a

Test (AIPMT) exam has been done away with on March 31, 2017. It means that students above 25 years of age can also register for the medical entrance exam from this year.

The ruling was based on the recommendation of the Medical Council of India (MCI) which is looking forward to the bridge the acute shortage of doctors in India.

GST WILL LEAD TO...

replacing the plethora of central and state taxes with just a few levies, the burden of taxation on the people should come down in an ideal GST scenario.

The fact that India is on the right track can be gauged from the fact that 140 other countries have also adopted the single goods and services tax. Studies have shown that not only have government revenues increased dramatically in most of these countries but there has been a rise in the gross domestic product as well.

What will be the impact of GST on the economy, is the question being asked by the layman. The first is simplicity of operation for both industry and services producers. Manufacturers will find life much easier as they will only pay a single point tax instead of the numerous excise, octroi and other levies that have to be paid at each tier of the production process. The second is ease of movement throughout the country as goods can be moved from state to state without having to stop to pay octroi. The third is that services will become more expensive as these are now being taxed at a lower rate than the proposed new levy. The fourth is that government revenues should rise as the simplicity of paying tax is an incentive to do so rather than evade or avoid levies and finally, the ease of doing business will improve which should in turn lead to more investments and thereby give a push to economic growth.

One of the problems in implementation, however, has been the concern of most states that the introduction of GST will reduce their revenues from the levies imposed by them at the state level. As a result, the empowered committee of state finance ministers which negotiated the launch of GST, ended up providing some big revenue cushions to these states. Most important was the actual compensation that was to be given over a fixed time span to some of what are known as "producing" states. In other words, regions where industrialization has taken root and which export many products to other parts of the country. This is opposed to what are known as "consuming" states which are not manufacturing much and instead are importing products from other regions. Obviously the producing states have far higher revenues from excise and other state levies than the consuming ones. Hence their losses, if any, would be higher than the consuming states. So it was decided to give compensation to states for the perceived loss in revenue due to subsuming state levies in GST. The compensation would be met through levy of a cess called GST Compensation Cess on luxury items and sin goods like tobacco for the first five years. Any excess amount after the end of the five year tenure in the GST Compensation Fund to be created, would be divided between the Centre and the States.

The new compensation law thus provides for states that suffer losses because of the GST in the first five years of its operation. The compensation issue was one of the main aspects to be discussed after the GST bill had been passed by Parliament last year. Many issues like division of tax administration and taxing high sea trade as well as the compensation problem had to be discussed between the centre and states. Fortunately, these have been resolved in time and the GST is set to be launched on the target date of July 1 this year.

As for the integrated GST (IGST), it has been passed to enable taxing inter-state movement of goods. In other words, even though other inter-state taxes are being dispensed with, a fresh one is being levied under the umbrella of the GST legislation. This is yet again a concession to states who are worried over the removal of inter state taxes that will be eliminated after the introduction of GST. There is even a state goods and services tax which can be levied by state governments so that the revenues accrue to it. The union territory act is meant to enable levy of such a tax by union territories as well. Thus there will be a dual GST levied, one by the centre which will collect the revenue from this levy and another by the states from which the revenues will accrue to them. The revenue from the IGST or inter state movement of goods will accrue to the central government exchequer.

In other words, instead of the original concept of having a single point tax at the retail level, there will now be about three taxes. So one may try to explain the GST as a tax that replaces all others but it has now ended up as a three tier levy include a tax on inter-state movement of goods.

The only way one can rationalise these multiple taxation levels is that GST has to be introduced in this country in this imperfect manner due to the pressures from the state governments in a federal structure. It is for this reason also that the tax structure has been higher in some areas than is actually warranted. The GST Council has recommended a four tier tax structure - 5,12,18 and 28 per cent. On the highest rate, a cess will be imposed on luxury goods, again to for funds. While no state government would like to impose unduly high taxes which could make them unpopular, it is possible to levy high taxes on products that are not of mass consumption. This would still lead to inflationary pressures on the economy.

Thus the highest rate of 28 per cent should really be reduced considerably so that it is not raised to an uncomfortably high level either by the centre or states. In this context, one must refer to a proposal made earlier to embed a revenue neutral tax rate in the legislation itself. While this has been opposed by many, the fact is that it would relieve the pressure by states on the centre for increasing the GST rate.

One can only hope that the exclusion of major revenue earners like petroleum products and alcohol will gradually be brought into the purview of GST. In addition even the division of GST between centre and states needs to be done away with in the long run. States need to be reassured that they will receive sufficient revenue from a single tax being levied within their borders to ensure that they can run their governments. It is also hoped that the introduction of three taxes instead of a single one does not become a permanent feature of the GST format in this country. At the same time, as mentioned earlier, given the federal nature of this country, it is not possible to ignore the concerns of state governments on the revenue aspect of the new tax.

The introduction of GST is being viewed as a panacea for many ills in the economy. The projection is that it would raise GDP growth by at least one to two per cent besides making it much easier to do business in the country. The fact is, however, that in the current format, GST may not have the desired impact immediately. It could conceivably lead to higher inflation because of the increased tax levels on a range of products. At the same time, it is a bold experiment worth taking even if it is not being rolled out in the original format. After being launched, it is likely that many of these infirmities will be ironed out so that GST becomes a boon and improves the quality of life for the common man.

Rs 1,400 while the NEET application fee for SC, ST or PH students is Rs 750.

Admit card for NEET 2017 will be released on April 15, 2017.

Do not forget to take the printout of the confirmation page before you submit the NEET application form, and keep it safe for later use.

How to prepare for NEET 2017 in just 30 days?

Preparing for NEET exam in one month is not 'difficult' but not 'impossible'. If you have just realised that you can apply for NEET 2017 (because you are over 25 years of age), do not hesitate any longer.

Here are some tips to help you crack the NEET or AIPMT exam in just 30 days:

NEET Study Material

Since you have less time on hand, stick to NCERT books. You can use other books only as reference wherever needed. You may also solve the MCQs in other NEET preparation books or available on Internet sources for more practice.

Due to shortage of time, prepare the important topics first and then, complete the rest of the syllabus for each subject.

NEET 2017 Study Plan for the late starters

Week 1	Physics
Week 2	Biology
Week 3	Chemistry
Week 4	Revision, Practice through Previous Years' AIPMT or NEET Papers, and Online Mock Test Series

Important Topics for Physics

Prepare for the Physics topics in the following order:

- ★ Mechanical Properties
- ★ Current Electricity
- ★ Dual Nature of Matter & Radiation
- ★ Magnetism & Moving Charges
- ★ Thermodynamics
- ★ Rigid Body Dynamics
- ★ Work, Energy and Power
- ★ Planar Motion
- ★ Ray Optics
- ★ Wave Optics
- ★ Kinetic theory & Thermal properties of matter
- ★ Atomic Study
- ★ Oscillation
- ★ Gravitation

Practice Laws of Motion, Alternating Current, and Work, Energy and Power as much as you can.

Experts suggest that Physics section in NEET is mostly application-based. So, you should memorise the formulae and then understand their applications to various situations.

Solve all the numerical problems of NCERT books and use them to prepare the conceptual part too.

Also, solve Physics MCQs from good-quality competition books too.

Important Topics for Biology (Botany + Zoology)

Prepare for the Botany or Zoology topics in the following order:

- ★ Reproduction
- ★ Biological Classification
- ★ Principles of Inheritance and Variation
- ★ Morphology of Flowering Plants
- ★ Cell: The Unit of Life
- ★ Animal Kingdom
- ★ Ecosystems
- ★ Molecular Basis of Inheritance
- ★ Human Health and Diseases
- ★ Body Fluids and Circulation

Biological Classification seems to be the favourite topic of NEET question paper designers. Historically speaking, 90% of the questions asked in the NEET exam are picked from NCERT books when it comes to Biology section. Study all the diagrams and concepts carefully.

Important Topics for Chemistry

Prepare for Chemistry topics in the following order:

- ★ Basic Concepts
- ★ P-Block Elements
- ★ Equilibrium
- ★ Aldehydes, Ketones and Carboxylic Acids
- ★ Chemical Bonding
- ★ Coordination Compounds
- ★ Alkanes, Alkenes and Alkynes
- ★ Thermodynamics and Thermochemistry
- ★ Haloalkanes and Haloarenes
- ★ The d and f Block Elements
- ★ Solutions
- ★ The Solid State
- ★ Alcohols, Phenols and Ethers

In Chemistry, s-block, p-block, d-block, and f-block elements should be thoroughly prepared along with special reactions in Organic Chemistry.

NEET questions related to Inorganic Chemistry are mostly fact-based and are picked directly from NCERT books.

On the other hand, in Organic and Physical Chemistry, questions asked in the NEET are both conceptual and application-based in nature. To prepare for them, you will need to refer both to NCERT books and good-quality competition books.

In the last week, solve at least ten previous years' NEET and AIPMT question papers. This should help you become familiar with the NEET question pattern, difficulty levels of questions asked in the exam, and gauge your understanding of the NEET syllabus you have covered.

Always Remember...

1. NEET 2017 exam has negative marking. So, if you do not know an answer, leave it altogether. Do not go for guesswork as you may end up losing marks for a wrong answer.
2. It is very important to take care of your health during NEET preparation time. Avoid junk food and try to catch at least six hours of sleep. 15 minutes of walk or meditation or a round of badminton from time-to-time can help in concentrating better and be more alert.
3. Switch off your mobile phone and laptop. This is the time to keep your hands off social media, and invest that time in your NEET preparation.
4. Keep motivating yourself. Think positively and believe in yourself.

ENRICH YOUR LIFE SKILLS & CAREER

Dr. Jitendra Nagpal

Life skills are abilities for adaptive and positive behaviour that enable our youngsters to deal effectively with the demands and challenges of everyday life. These are a set of human skills acquired via teaching or direct experience that are used to handle problems and questions commonly encountered in daily human life. Dr. Jitendra Nagpal is a Life Skills Coach. He is a developmental trainer in youth well being and soft skills for the schools, colleges and corporate sector. In this regular column, he will answer the questions of our readers.

Q. Hello, I'm 22 year old. Drawing and sketching has always been my interest area. But my family have always opposed my interest; instead they want me to become an engineer. I really don't find any job apart from a painter worth becoming. I'm afraid about my career growth and prospects? Kindly help me overcome this?

A. With meticulous planning and proper implementation always help us to move ahead. The ball is in your court, whatever you find interesting you can make a choice of your own.

Most parents just want what is best for their children, but when their ideas of what is best for you don't quite match your own, frustration and anger can run riot. To try to help you see things their way, parents may resort to pressuring you without even realising it.

If you feel that one, or both, of your parents is pressuring you to act or think a certain way, use this steps to dealing with parent pressure: Remain calm, Know your argument, Enlist the aid of an expert and Be willing to compromise.

Also remember, Interest (preference) and Aptitude (ability or potential) are two very important things you should think about. A final thing to consider: The paths to success aren't complex but always plan out short term goals and work towards achieving them. So, keep on working hard and Good Luck for your future endeavours.

Q. I am 26 year old and working in a very reputed bank in Noida. Lately, I feel that I have excessive work pressure. The whole office working environment is very competitive and rigid. This diminishes my thinking process and I feel very exhausted. How do I overcome occupational stress?

A. While some workplace stress is normal, excessive stress can interfere with your productivity and performance-and impact your physical and emotional health. It can even mean the difference between success and failure on the job. You can't control everything in your work environment, but that doesn't mean you're powerless-even when you're stuck in a difficult situation. Whatever your work demands or ambitions, there are steps you can take to

1. Track your stressors. Keep a journal for a week or two to identify which situations create the most stress and how you respond to them
2. Develop healthy responses
3. Establish boundaries
4. Take time to recharge
5. Learn how to relax
6. Talk to your supervisor
7. Get some support.

Get some support. Accepting help from trusted friends and family members can improve your ability to manage stress. Your organization may also have stress management resources available through an employee assistance program (EAP). Keep on working hard, Good Luck.

CAREER COUNSELING – A NEW AGE CAREER

Usha Albuquerque & Nidhi Prasad

It is said that there are two critical decisions we take in our lives. One is the choice of a life partner, and the second, the choice of a career or profession. These two important choices determine whether we will be happy and successful in life, or not. And while we give ample time, attention and expenditure to the first, very often little thought is given to choosing a career.

A career decision is made on the basis of unrealistic professional aspirations, inadequate knowledge, parental and societal pressures and emotional factors that should rightly be irrelevant to this decision. Our society is specifically one that finds no child worthy unless he can become a doctor, an engineer, business manager or a chartered accountant, ignoring the fact that each individual is unique in abilities, values, interests and personality styles, and could be eminently successful in anyone of thousands of work opportunities that exist today.

As career opportunities explode and the demands and needs of young people increase, career counseling has gained importance and popularity. It is now readily accepted as an objective and professional source of advice to help any individual explore, pursue and attain their career goals.

WHAT IS CAREER COUNSELING?

Career Counseling is a process that helps you to know and understand yourself and the world of work in order to make informed educational, work and life decisions. Career development is more than just deciding on a major and what job you want to get when you graduate. It is a comprehensive, developmental program designed to assist individuals in making and implementing informed educational and occupational choices. Professional counselling can improve the performance of students to a great extent, so as to enable them to grow physically, mentally and emotionally with the knowledge and freedom to make informed career choices. A career guidance and counseling program develops an individual's competencies in self-knowledge, educational and occupational exploration, and career planning.

Career counselors help students evaluate their abilities, interests, talents, and personality characteristics so that they can develop realistic academic and career goals. Counseling is aimed at helping them understand what is going on and enable them to make their own choices, reach their own decisions and to act upon them accordingly. It is a lifelong process of getting ready to choose, choosing and continuing to make choices from among many occupations available.

Career counseling basically consists of four elements:

1. Helping individuals to gain greater self-awareness in areas such as interests, values, abilities, and personality style.
2. Linking individuals to job opportunities, information and resources so that they can become more knowledgeable about jobs and study paths.
3. Engaging students in the decision making process in order that they can choose a career path that is well suited to their own interests, values, abilities and personality style

4. Assisting individuals with job search strategies, including managing career changes and transitions, and professional development.

A counselor uses a range of counseling approaches. They use interviews, counselling sessions, tests, or other methods when evaluating and advising students. They may operate career information centres and career education programs. They advise on college majors, admission requirements, entrance exams, and financial aid. They help students develop job-finding skills such as resume writing and interviewing techniques.

Career counsellors can also specialise in employment and placement counselling to assist students with career development and in locating and applying for jobs.

A counselor works with people from all walks of life in varying ages and from different family situations and culture. Most schools have a career counselor, or at best a school counselor who can also handle career guidance for students. Career counselors can also work at counseling centres open to students and individuals at different stages of their careers. Career decision-making is not something that happens only once in a person's life but, is an ongoing process that might take place at any age.

Areas of work in Career Counselling Psychological Assessments to Determine Aptitude and interests : Career counselors conduct a variety of aptitude and career assessment tests. These tests are designed to match a student's natural skills, strengths and abilities with key components of specific careers. Having this information ahead of time can be invaluable when choosing a career path.

Career Information: A career counselor must have up-to-date information on career trends, job opportunities, so as to help with career planning with realistic career goals that match the individual. Such information is normally accessed from books and videos, newspapers, online sites and other material that provides information on jobs, educational requirements, remunerations, and descriptions of the work.

Job Search Support: The career counselor is an invaluable source of support and encouragement for those looking for jobs. Career counselors often offer cover letter, resume and interviewing services in conjunction with their counseling services

ELIGIBILITY

For a career in counseling, after 10+2 it is best to take up subjects like psychology, sociology, social work etc for graduation, followed by post graduation in counseling. There are no specific courses in career counselling, but most courses in guidance and counselling cover career counselling as well. Counsellors with a background in psychology are ideally suited to take up this career, as their knowledge and insight into human behaviour helps them understand better the problems of their clients. Teachers with some years of experience can also take up career guidance and counseling.

the primary jobs of a counselor often involves instilling hope in an individual.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Most career counselors work in schools and educational institutes, or with career and study advisory services. They advise on college majors, admission requirements, entrance exams, and financial aid.

They can also work with career information centres and career education programs.

They help students develop job finding skills such as resume writing and interviewing techniques.

Career counsellors can also work with recruitment agencies and specialise in employment and placement counselling to assist students with career development and in locating and applying for jobs.

With the increase in overseas education, career counselors have also been advising students on choice of study course, institute and country, as well as assisting in the application process.

WHY CAREER COUNSELING IS IMPORTANT?

Although career guidance is increasingly gaining in importance, particularly in metropolitan areas, there remains limited awareness about career planning in large parts of the country, and because of which out of the 30 million who graduate every year - 20% are unemployed and most often, unemployable. At the same time there are thousands of jobs without suitable applicants. Trained career counselors providing appropriate career counseling could help fill this gap.

Moreover, with myriad avenues of work popping up every day, students get confused and make incorrect choices that not only affect their lives, but also queer the pitch as regards development of trained professionals for the country's manpower requirements.

Having a professional advisor to assist with deciding what strengths and talents can be developed for a meaningful and satisfying career is of vital importance, and can be a challenging and profitable career for many.

SKILLS REQUIRED TO BE AN EFFECTIVE COUNSELOR

- ▶ Communication Skills: Effective counselors should have excellent communication skills.
- ▶ Patience: A counselor needs patience with clients as it may take time to react and give considered thought to suggestions made.
- ▶ Good Listener: Counselors spend a significant amount of time listening to their clients, time to express their story and their feelings. Counselling requires more listening than talking.
- ▶ Non-judgmental: Counselors hear all kinds of private information and encounter all types of people. Emotional stability and maturity is therefore required to handle the career problems of others. Multicultural competency is also an asset.
